

We initially wanted to bring some of our specialist glazing work at Spectrum Architectural Glazing to life and showcase our workmanship via video. Like anyone that contracts in a new service, you are concerned about the quality of what you are going to get for your money. How well will the footage turn out? How good will the service level be? And how will my client be impacted during the whole process? After reviewing some of Steve's work, I made contact to investigate costs and what I would get for my money. Straight away I sensed that Steve had my clients interests at heart and thus I knew I was going to receive a courteous professional service.

The whole process from start to finish was simple, easy and personable, which makes the thought of re-engaging Steve and Junction 16's services one of trouble-free pleasure! Communication to organise the visit and undertake the work for both myself and my client was exceptional and Steve proved to be very easy to work with.

The quality of the work provided exceeded our expectations and our design brief was completely met.. Steve, also brought some really nice additional footage to the mix that we really didn't expect. We already have potential customers that are commenting on the project and have expressed an interest in knowing more. The quality of the aerial work and still photographs and service are truly brilliant!

I highly recommend Junction 16 for both the aerial and ground based commercial photography and already have lined up two further projects.
